

I confess...I'm a BOM addict.

Okay, okay...I know I committed to the Joy in the New Year Challenge, and I really should be working on all the projects that are on my list instead of starting new projects. BUT...I just can't resist a Block of the Month(BOM) Project.

A couple days ago when I saw a post over at Badlands Quilts about a free online Block of the Month project from Two Creative Studios, I just couldn't resist...

In fact, I didn't even try to resist. I just jumped right in. I used my civil war fabrics. I ended up liking the colors together so much that I hunted online until I could find more of the pink fabric. Isn't it crazy that when I was child I was told again and again that pink and red couldn't go together, yet don't they look good together in these blocks? That's what I love about civil war fabrics...everything just seems to match.
