

Leftovers No More!

Over Christmas my refrigerator was on overload. I'm sure many of you can relate. At Christmas, there is so much food.

A refrigerator like this is Hubby's pet peeve. He's big on no food waste...I like to be but at times, I'm tired of it. I don't want to eat it anymore...or something sounds way better. I really do try though.

At one point over break Hubby said, "No more new food!" I agreed.

So I waved my magic wand and tried to make the leftovers look no quite so left over. What you see below, is the chili leftovers....Chili Quesadillas.

To make them:

I put butter on the griddle

I laid down a tortilla shell

I put chili on the shell

I added pepperoni

I added cheese

I put another tortilla on top

It cooked for a couple minutes, then flipped it.

This is the leftover sloppy joe meat... Tator Tot Nachos...

For these I put tator tots in the air fryer... cooked them to golden brown
heated the sloppy joe meat
put the meat on top and cheese on top too
Microwaved for about a minute to melt the cheese.

Just then Karl came home from being over at Craig and Kalissa's. He said, "Wow mom, this looks delicious."

Bahahahaha! It did but it was just leftovers. Making something from nothing is one of my favorite things to do. It seems I don't mind eating them if they morph into something different.

So with that...two less Pyrex bowls in the refrigerator. I'm going to have to get more creative to use the rest of the leftovers.
