

More Goodies for a New Sewist

This is post two about all of the things that blog readers sent for my new little sewist.

An organizer with goodies came from Lisa W. The organizer is something she will love.

The layers come apart and all sorts of sewing goodies can be stored there. Lisa even stocked it!

She also sent a cute little box to keep her “sewing stash” in. Lisa included some fun goodies in the box.

A blog reader who chose to be anonymous sent some 6” squares. It looks like there is enough to make a nice quilt top. How sweet to share.

These awesome fabrics came from Teresa. She asked what I could use and I suggested pillow case fabrics. Oh aren't these fun ones...check them out.

The next set of goodies came from Jackie in Canada. Love and care knows no borders and Jackie proved that!! There are love of great polka dots and larger fabrics here.

The last set of goodies came from Charlene in AZ. She wrote and asked if I thought NG might need a bag to keep her sewing supplies in. She went on to explain that she's made a few of these bags and gifted them. I said sure. She's often bring things back and forth between our houses.

The bag came in a FILLED box. I didn't even recognize that there was a bag in the box.

..but underneath it all was the bag.

This will be perfect! The size is awesome.

Charlene filled the inside with goodies too. I'll get to the goodies in a bit...

Look inside the bag... Pockets! and finished so nicely.

I'm impressed!! If you're reading this Charlene, please share the pattern name for the bag. I think I want to make one. I LOVE how the opening has a wire or something in it that make the bag pop out and hold just like the picture shows.

Now back to the other things in the bag....

Wow. Goodies galore.

This has been great everyone. I feel so supported by all of you with the nice comments that are made about my relationship with NG...I feel so supported by the generosity I've experienced through this project of helping her with supplies. It's so awesome.
