

Things She'll Miss: The Griddle

The days are numbering down. Only a day and our nest will be empty. Move out day for our youngest kiddo, Kalissa, is August 13th. So far, I am fine with it and haven't did a big "empty nest melt down". I think I am so busy with the new house that it's easy to be distracted. She is ready to go and has felt that way all of last year-so, it's just time for her to start the next chapter of her life.

As the day becomes closer and closer she'll say, you know "I'm really going to miss Ruby"... "I'm going to miss free laundry"...but today it was the griddle. "Mom, I'm really going to miss the griddle," was what she said today.

Kalissa cooks everything on the griddle. I truly mean everything.

Buying that griddle is one of my best thrift store buys EVER!

Around here, people use these as lefse making griddles..Kalissa uses it for everything except lefse. I told about the griddle earlier in this post.

If you have tried regular griddles and have been disappointed, like I was, this is the griddle to get. I looked on Amazon and they have them listed as Bethany Housewares 730 Heritage Grill. If I could choose my most used kitchen appliance besides Hubby's coffee maker, I would easily say this is the most used appliance in my kitchen.

Today she made chicken breast. They were delicious.

Now if you ask me what I'll miss when she's gone...I'd have to say her cooking. It's such a treat to have someone else cook once in a while.

Check out a giveaway for a Visa gift card from Glidden Paint

going on here.