

UFO Progress

I have progress in the UFO department...

Look and see!

My Pfeffernuse quilt is a top! I'm so excited. It feels so good to have a project that is this far along. I started thinking about where I am going to put this quilt in the line up of quilts waiting to be put on the quilt frame. The good news is that this one already has a backing ready to go...dare I hope to get it done over the weekend...maybe.

What's fun about this quilt...I bought a big box of scraps, many 80's calicoes on a garage sale for $1 and they make up much of the string blocks. The box was so big that there is plenty more to make another quilt. Kelli saw this and said if I didn't mind, she'd take the rest of the box of scraps. She wants to make this quilt too.

I'm very happy with the border fabric. It's a piece I bought from Whittles Fabrics.

You can find me here next Wednesday sharing my UFO progress..oh my, I have to figure out what I'm pulling out to work on.
