

Wave Runner Baby Quilt

Last weekend my niece had a little baby girl...To celebrate her arrival I spent the weekend making her a baby quilt. I used the pattern I found at Bumble Beans' Quilt A-long. It's really a great quilt a-long and even has a video tutorial which I found was very helpful.

This was a VERY fun quilt to make. It's very freeing and MUCH easier than it looks. If you are a person who hates cutting out quilts, this quilt is for you! I used a large floral print for the backing.

When I quilted it, I used a wavy flame design. It was a good choice. I am working on adding more designs to my repository and this was a perfect quilt to try the flame design on.

I made mine five blocks by five blocks. After washing, it ended up 45" x 45".

I would definitely make this quilt again....

That makes one item checked off my Joy in the New Year Challenge. Only eight more items to finish!
