

We Survived Confirmation

Over the weekend we celebrated Kalissa's confirmation!

The house was clean..enough...

There was enough food. Gracie, our dog, handled having company just fine, Kalissa didn't trip in her high heels, and our kids actually got along pretty well...

The kids getting along is always the most challenging part. Since the oldest three went off to college, having them all home at the same time can prove to be a challenge. In fact, sometimes I think they get along worse now than they did when they were all home.

I don't remember that with my own siblings...but we are much further apart in age.

Here's my five...all smiling...at least for the picture.

all that aside...

Congrats on your confirmation Kalissa...God has big plans for you!
