

What I'm Working On...

I am continuing to work on quilts for West, Texas. Almost all of my own sewing has come to a stand still. I did pull out my May UFO which is #10. In between everything else, I am going to try to work a bit on it too. Here it is...Cactus Patch from Bonnie Hunter's Scraps & Shirrtails: Reuse, Re-pupose, Recycle! The Art of "Quilting Green" .

I have worked on it earlier in the year and made some progress. Then I slowed down again because I am coming to the part where I have to make a decision. It seems that is where I always get stuck.

The fabric at the top of the picture is gold. Bonnie made hers using a gold fabric. Part of me really wants to use yellow instead. Kelli thinks I should use black. I am at a cross roads. With out a decision getting made, I can't do much more. Part of me just thinks use the gold it's here...

Please feel free to leave a comment and help me out with the decision...yellow, use the gold or black (but if you say black how do I finish the rest of the quilt?)

I don't have a lot of hope that I will actually finish it this month-these West, Texas quilts are taking all of my time, but at least getting the UFO pulled out will be a step towards progress...right??

To see what others are working on, check out Patchwork Times.

We have giveaways happening. Here is a link to win a copy of Quiltmaker's 100 Blocks Volume #7 , link to win the book "Pieced Hexies". and the Between Heaven and Texas giveaways.