

UFO Challenge

I didn't get a lot of UFO quilting done this week. Other things took over...prep for the family get together...work on a project from my Aunt and if you saw the blog on Monday, you know that I kind of got crazy with my Pineapple Crazy quilt.

Technically Pineapple Crazy is a UFO as well as project for the String Challenge so I guess maybe I did get LOTS of UFO quilting done if I count that.

ALL of my blocks for Pineapple Crazy are done.

I worked a bit on Scrap Crystals too...Here are the nine patches all done for the cornerstones on the quilt.

I also got this done...

It's the outer pieces...and the sashing pieces. The sashing pieces still need corners put on them but I'm getting closer.

I had hoped I might have a row together this week but at the time I didn't know I was going to be doing the project for my Aunt...and I didn't know I had bronchitis and needed to take it a little easy.

Find me back here next week. I'm not expecting lots of progress. I have a busy weekend ahead.
